ARTICLE 9, CERTIFICATE OF INCORPORATION

"All persons who shall have been regularly matriculated students at the College of William and Mary in Virginia, and who have spent not less than two hundred and forty days in actual residence at the said college, and whose connection therewith shall not have been severed by reason of any act which in the judgment of the Board of Managers reflects upon the moral character of the person in question, and who shall not at the time of becoming a member intend to return to the said college as a student in the academic session thereafter ensuing, shall be eligible to active membership in the association, which membership shall be granted in accordance with the By-Laws, and shall have voting power to such regulations as may, from time to time, be contained in the By-Laws."

INTRODUCTION

This catalogue follows closely the plan of the one published in 1925. It aims to give a complete list of all alumni and former students from 1866-1932. They are listed under three groups:

- (a) "Present Addresses Known."
- (b) "Dead."
- (c) "Present Addresses Unknown."

In addition to the above, the compilers of this catalogue felt that all alumni members of Phi Beta Kappa should be included from December 5, 1776, the date it was founded at William and Mary. A few of the second period (1851-61) could not be secured on account of the loss of records.

Brief sketches of the lives of the Presidents of William and Mary, titled graduates from 1783, living alumni before 1888, the Life Members and the Hundred Club have also been included.

We realize that this catalogue contains errors and omissions although every effort has been made to reduce them to the minimum. If you note any errors please fill in the "Correction Sheet" in the last page of this catalogue and return to Alumni Office.

*Indicates payment of dues or contributions to Alumni Fund.

†Indicates service in the World War.

I take this opportunity of thanking all who have made possible the publication of this catalogue.

It is hoped that this volume will be the means of binding the alumni closer together and closer to Alma Mater.

Very cordially,

GEO. W. GUY,
Executive Secretary Alumni Association.

*James Blair, D. D.

---

James Blair, D. D. (1656-1743), founder and first president of the College of William and Mary, was born in Edinburg, Scotland, in 1656. He was sent as a missionary to Virginia in 1685, where he secured the confidence of the provincial government and of the planters and proved himself far in advance of his contemporaries on the question of slavery. In 1689 when Sir Francis Nicholson was appointed lieutenant governor of Virginia, Blair was appointed commissary, the highest ecclesiastical office in the province. By this office he had a seat in the council of the colonial government and presided over the trial of the clergymen. He was also president of the council. He was minister successively at Henrico City, Jamestown and Williamsburg and after 1689 was commissary of Virginia. In this capacity he did much to raise the character of the provincial clergy and to rectify many clerical abuses. In 1690, at a time when there was only "one privately endowed school and a few old field schools" in the colony he took up the work of founding a college in Virginia, and in the same year began soliciting subscriptions for the institution which was to provide "for the Education of our Youth, a constant supply of our Ministry, and perhaps a foundation for ye conversion of our neighboring Heathen to the Christian Faith." The subscription list being headed by lieutenant governor and his council, soon amounted to 2,500 pounds.

The president was warmly supported in the first assembly held by Sir Francis Nicholson in 1691, and was recommended to the sovereigns of William and Mary in an address prepared for the assembly by Blair, which he was unanimously appointed to present. He accordingly proceeded to England; William and Mary favored the plan; on February 14, 1692 a charter for the College was granted, the Bishop of London being appointed Chancellor, and Blair president, and the College was named William and Mary. Preparations were made for the erection of the building and Sir Christopher Wren, the architect of the crown, drew the plans of the celebrated Main building which after three fires, was restored through the munificence of Mr. John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

In 1722 Blair published his one work, "Our Saviour's Divine Sermon on the Mount" contained in the fifth, sixth and seventh chapters of St. Matthew's Gospel, 4 vols. 800. He collaborated with Henry Hartwell and Edward Chilton in the preparation of a valuable book entitled "The Present State of Virginia and the College," probably the best extant account of Virginia in the latter part of the 17th century. The purpose of the College, in the language of the charter, was that the youth may be piously educated in good letters and manners and that the Christian faith may be propagated amongst the western Indians to the glory of Almighty God.

Blair died April 18, 1743, aged 87, and bequeathed his library to the College. Two portraits of him are preserved in the College, one taken in youth and the other later in life. These portraits are in the Blue Room of the Sir Christopher Wren Building.

President Blair and Lady Blair are buried in the old churchyard at Jamestown in two adjoining vaults—a small sycamore tree that was planted between the graves has grown to an immense tree that has moved the vaults and gravestones several feet apart.

Rev. William Dawson

Rev. William Dawson, second president of the College of William and Mary, was born in 1704, son of William Dawson of Aspatia, Cumberland County, England; entered Queen's College, Oxford, March 11, 1719-20, and took his A. B. February 22, 1724-25, and his A. M. in 1728. He assumed orders and in 1729 was professor of moral philosophy in William and Mary College. In 1743 he became the president and in 1746 received his D. D. from Oxford University.

Dr. Dawson, like Dr. Blair, was also commissary to the Bishop of London, and held a seat in the Governor's council. One thing is set forth by him which is worthy of mention; that the hopes and designs of the founders of the College in relation to its being a seminary for the instruction of pious ministers were not disappointed. According to his published letters the best ministers of Virginia were those educated at the College and sent over to England for ordination. It was chiefly the foreign-born and foreign-educated ministers who brought discredit on the church in the colony. His conscientious and faithful discharge of his public trusts as well as his amiable character in private life, endeared him to all who had the honor of his acquaintance.

Dr. Dawson died and was buried in Williamsburg on July 24, 1752.

William Stith

---

William Stith (1707-1755), the third president of the College of William and Mary, was born in Virginia in 1707, the son of William Stith and Mary Randolph, "daughter of William Randolph, gentleman," from whom Thomas Jefferson, John Marshall, and Robert E. Lee were descended.

He studied first in the grammar school of William and Mary College and later matriculated at Queen's College, Oxford, May 21, 1724, and received from the University, February 27, 1728, the degree of B. A. and in 1730 his M. A. He also studied for the ministry and was ordained a minister of the established church.

In the year 1731 he was elected Master of the grammar school in William and Mary College and Chaplain of the House of Burgesses. Before this body he preached in 1752 a sermon on the "Sinfulness of Gaming," which was published at the request of the general assembly. Previous to this in June, 1738, he was called to the charge of Henrico Parish in the county of Henrico. He married his cousin Judith, a daughter of Thomas Randolph, of Tuckahoe, the second son of William Randolph of Turkey Island, and resided at "Glebe" near "Varina", the seat of justice for the county of Henrico. There he wrote his History of Virginia, which was printed on the only printing press in the colony, in the city of Williamsburg.

He qualified as president of William and Mary, August 14, 1752, but owing to a difference with the governor, Dinwiddie, he was not appointed commissary as his predecessors had been. He served, while President, as minister of York-Hampton Parish in York county.

Rev. Thomas Dawson

Thomas Dawson, fourth president of William and Mary College and brother of Dr. William Dawson, the second president, acquired most of his education at the College of William and Mary. He studied divinity under his brother and in 1740 went to England for ordination. In June, 1738, he was Master of the "Indian School" at the College of William and Mary, which school had been established by the charity of Robert Boyle for the education of Indian students.

On Dr. Blair's death in 1743, the vestry of Bruton Parish elected him their minister, and he was also commissary. This was a period of great dissension in religious and political affairs that caused a breach between the faculty and board of visitors. He was president of the College from 1755-1761 but the habits of intemperance to which several of the professors were unfortunately addicted and from which the president himself was not exempt, produced impressions that affected the College injuriously for a number of years. It was mainly, however, the question of religion that caused some of the Virginia youths to go to Princeton and Philadelphia instead of the College of William and Mary, notably James Madison, president of the United States. The Baptists, Presbyterians and Methodists had greatly increased in numbers, and the College which was the headquarters of the favored church, was regarded with jealousy and distrust. But in spite of this the number of students at William and Mary continued to increase, the number being in 1697, twenty-seven; in 1736, sixty; and during President Dawson's administration about one hundred.

Rev. William Yates

Rev. William Yates, fifth president of the College of William and Mary, came of a family of ministers who contributed their full share to the cause of education and religion both in America and England. His grandfather was Rev. Robert Yates who was minister to Christ Church in Gloucester county, Virginia in 1699. His father was Bartholomew Yates who was graduated from Brasenose College, Oxford, October 21, 1698, and served in William and Mary College, from 1729-1734 as professor of divinity. By his pious labors the latter certainly merited the eulogy of President William Dawson, viz: that "piety to God and beneficence to men were the only acts of his excellent life."

The three sons of Bartholomew Yates—Bartholomew, Robert and William, were all educated for the ministry. The two former were graduated from Oxford and the latter from William and Mary, where he was usher of the grammar school until 1744. In that year he resigned and became minister of Abingdon Parish, Gloucester county, Virginia. On the death of Thomas Dawson he qualified as president of William and Mary College, May 10, 1761, but held the office only three years. He left several children, one of whom, Elizabeth, married Rev. William Bland and was ancestor to Gen. Roger A. Pryor.

Rev. James Horrocks

Rev. James Horrocks, sixth president of the College of William and Mary who was elected in 1764, was a young clergyman who though he had been master of the grammar school for only two or three years found means to carry his election over Richard Graham, who had been professor of mathematics in the College for nearly twenty years.

The political and ecclesiastical controversy of the College with the State made his administration one of strife and turmoil. The Rev. William Robinson of King and Queen county had held the office of commissary since Thomas Dawson's death, but dying about this time, he was succeeded by President Horrocks, who at once became involved in the controversies leading to the American Revolution—such as: the disputes relative to the ministers' salaries, the establishment of a bishopric in America, and the famous Stamp Act. Nevertheless no period was more prolific in great names at William and Mary. One name among the students, that of Thomas Jefferson, stands out in bold relief. Among the professors we read of Rev. Gronow Owen, considered by some the greatest poet with the exception of A. Gwilym, ever produced by Wales, Rev. Samuel T. Henley and Thomas Gwatkins, probably without equals on the continent of America for erudition in the classics and oriental lore, and Dr. William Small, who ranked with Cooper and Darwin as a scientist and natural philosopher. While Harvard still continued under the charge of a president and tutors and had but one "professor," William and Mary had for many years prided itself upon a full family of professors, graduates of the Scottish and English Universities.

His health failing him in 1771, President Horrocks sailed for England with his wife on board the Savannah la Mar, leaving John Camm to represent him as president of the College, the Rev. Mr. Willie as commissary, and the Rev. Mr. Henley, as minister of Bruton Parish Church, which several offices he had united in his own name. The succeeding year, however, the Virginia Gazette announced his death at Oporto, on March 20, 1772, describing him as a gentleman "well versed in several branches of learning, particularly the mathematics and eminently possessed of those virtues which increase in value as they are farthest from ostentation." He left a brother, Thomas Horrocks, of Wakefield in Great Britain, and a sister, Frances Horrocks.

Rev. John Camm

Rev. John Camm, seventh president of the College of William and Mary, was born in England in 1718, the son of Thomas Camm of Hornsea, and went to school at Beverley in York county, in the Kingdom. He matriculated at Trinity College, Cambridge, June 6, 1738, as a "subsizator." On August 24, 1749, he qualified as a professor of divinity in William and Mary College, and was also elected minister of York-Hampton Parish. He was the last of the colonial presidents of William and Mary, and succeeded James Horrocks as head of the College and head of the established church in Virginia.

He was a man of inflexible courage and led the clergy in the "parsons causes" against the people and Patrick Henry. He acted, too, as treasurer of the College; and in the proceedings of the clergy who met in convention at William and Mary College in 1754, he took a leading part and was appointed their agent to solicit the repeal of the act of the colonial House of Burgesses, making the salaries of the clergy payable in money instead of tobacco. Mr. Camm went to England in behalf of the clergy and secured from the privy council there a disallowance of the act. But the juries of Virginia, influenced by the eloquence of Patrick Henry and the influence of Governor Dinwiddie, who hated Camm, gave nominal damages and President Camm again appealed to the privy council. In 1767, Lord North dismissed the appeal on the ground that the action had been wrongly laid. This closed a controversy of thirteen years duration.

In 1769 he married Betty Hansford, daughter of Charles Hansford, one of Nathaniel Bacon's lieutenants, on the outbreak of hostilities between Virginia and the mother country. President Camm would not recognize the authority of the new government and in the spring of 1777 was removed by the board of visitors. He died the following year and his wife a year later. He left numerous descendants in Virginia.

The following romance is connected with Rev. Camm. One of his young parishioners asked the doctor to "put in a good word" for him to his lady love. The clergyman fulfilled his mission and the young lady referred him to a certain portion of the scriptures to read when he reached home. To the doctor's amazement, it read: "Thou Art the Man." So Mr. Camm is known as the John Alden of Virginia.

The following is an extract appearing from the proceedings of the visitors, Sept. 1, 1769:

"The Visitation being informed that the Rev'd John Camm, Professor of Divinity, and the Rev'd Josiah Johnson, Master of the Grammar School, have lately married and taken up their residence in the city of Williamsburg by which great inconvenience has arisen to the College and the necessary attention which those professors ought to pay to the conduct and behavior of the students and scholars has been almost totally interrupted:

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Visitation that the Professors and Masters, then engaging in marriage and the concerns of a private family, and shifting their residence to any place without the college, is contrary to the principles on which the college was founded, and their duty as Professors."

Extract from same, December 14th, 1769:

"Resolved, That all Professors and Masters hereafter to be appointed, be constantly resident of ye college, and upon marriage of such Professor and Master, that the Professorship be immediately vacated."

Rt. Rev. James Madison

James Madison, the eighth president of the College of William and Mary, was born in Augusta County, Virginia, August 27, 1749, the son of James Madison, Clerk of Augusta County. He was a cousin of James Madison, President of the United States.

He went first to an academy in Maryland and in 1768 to William and Mary College. On July 29, 1772, he received the gold medal awarded as a prize by Lord Botetourt for classical learning. He was writing master in the College until 1773, when he was appointed professor of natural philosophy. He studied law under George Wythe but abandoned the profession after a single case, and aided by fifty pounds from the Board of Visitors, visited England in 1775 and took orders. In November 1775 he again resumed his chair of natural philosophy and in October, 1777, was made President of the College at the age of 38. Mr. Madison supported with great zeal the cause of the Revolution, and with Thomas Jefferson, a member of the Board of Visitors, procured an entire reform of the course pursued at William and Mary College. Under their auspices the elective system of study was introduced and by the creation of chairs of medicine and law, the College was made a university. Dr. James McClung was the first professor of medicine and George Wythe the first professor of law, and George Washington was elected Chancellor. Thus the College became the first in America to put in the elective system and to support a chair for municipal law.

Madison, after peace was declared with Great Britain, was made first bishop of the Episcopal Church in Virginia. Under the new order of things the College was no longer supported by the established church and the only source of means was the fees of the students whose number was small.

Bishop Madison gave a long and useful life to William and Mary. He was married in 1779 to Sarah Tate, of Williamsburg, a granddaughter of William Cocke, secretary of the colony. She died Aug. 20, 1815, leaving one son, John Catesby Madison, and one daughter, who married Robert C. Scott, a distinguished lawyer of Virginia. A brother of Bishop Madison became Governor of Kentucky. Bishop Madison died March 6, 1812. His remains lie interred in the Chapel of the College with Lord Botetourt, John and Peyton Randolph and other celebrities.

Rev. John Bracken

John Bracken, ninth president of the College of William and Mary, was a clergyman who appears as master of the grammar school in November, 1775. He retained his position until the grammar school was substituted in December, 1779, by a school of modern languages, of which Charles Bellini was appointed professor, the first chair of modern languages in the country and one of the priorities of William and Mary.

At the Episcopal Convention held in Richmond in 1786 Bracken received ten votes for bishop. At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Hospital for the Insane at Williamsburg, July 20, 1790, he was elected president of the Board. In 1792 he became professor of "Humanity" in William and Mary College. For many years he was rector of Bruton Parish Church and in 1812 succeeded James Madison as President of the College. Master of the grammar school at that time seemed to be a stepping stone to the presidency of the College and Bracken was the logical successor of Bishop Madison to this office. In 1814 he was elected Bishop of the Episcopal Church, which office he declined the following year on account of failing health. He was closely identified with the cause of the colony against the mother country and lived to see liberty achieved, the Constitution adopted and the Union established.

The first prohibition law in America was passed by the Board of Visitors of the College while Bracken was professor of "Humanity" at that institution. Following is a gist of the law:

From the Statutes of the College published in 1792:

"Be it ordained, That the drinking of spirituous liquors (except in that moderation which becomes the prudent and industrious student) be prohibited."

From a Copy of the Old Laws:

"No other person than a student or other member of the College shall be admitted as a boarder at the College table. No liquors shall be furnished or used at table except beer, cider, toddy, or spirits and water.

"The keeper of the College table shall, on no pretext nor for any consideration, furnish or sell to the students wine or any other spirituous liquors, to be drunk at any time or place, than at their ordinary meals, as aforesaid."

During Dr. Bracken's administration some of the outstanding students were Carter Harrison, son of C. B. Harrison, of Maycox, Prince George; Thomas G. Peachy, of Williamsburg; William B. Tyler, son of William Tyler, Judge of the State Court of Prince William; Lewis Tyler, of Williamsburg, son of Chancellor Samuel Tyler; Hill Carter, of Shirley, son of Robert (King) Carter, and John Page, son of Mann Page, of Gloucester.

The Bracken House, on East Francis Street in Williamsburg, has been restored. It is a four-room cottage with two large chimneys and is typical of the architecture of the day. The house since 1928 has been occupied by Bishop John B. Bentley, former assistant rector of Bruton Parish Church, now Bishop of the Yukon, and is now the residence of his successor.

Dr. John Augustine Smith

Dr. John Augustine Smith, tenth president of William and Mary College, was born in Westmoreland county, Virginia, August 29, 1782, youngest son of Rev. Thomas Smith, of Copel Parish in that county, and a graduate from St. Thomas Hospital in London. He was also graduated from William and Mary College in 1800, studied medicine and settled as a physician in New York City. In 1809 he became lecturer on Anatomy at the College of Physicians and Surgeons and editor of the Medical and Physiological Journal.

In 1814 he was elected President of William and Mary College. His faculty then consisted of Dr. J. Augustine Smith, president; William Nelson, professor of law and police; Dr. J. Jones, professor of chemistry and natural philosophy and Ferdinand S. Campbell, professor of mathematics. Dr. Smith was the first layman to hold the presidency and in 1824 he deemed it necessary to move the College to Richmond as the best means to rid it of its ancient popular disadvantages and enable it to make a new start. But in this Dr. Smith incurred the opposition of John Tyler, in the Board of Visitors, who voiced the local feeling, and Thomas Jefferson who was then busy with the scheme of founding the University at Charlottesville feared the effect of the removal upon the liberality of the legislature to which he was then appealing for pecuniary aid in favor of his enterprise. The united opposition defeated Smith's measure and in 1825 he resigned. He resumed practice in New York City and from 1831-1843 was president of the College of Physicians and Surgeons. He published numerous addresses, lectures and essays.

Dr. Smith conceived the idea of the Theological Seminary. It was his thought that it should be located at Williamsburg, but Bishop Moore, Bishop Meade and others felt that Alexandria would be a better location.

Mrs. Mary Smith Mutter, a niece of Dr. Smith, makes the following interesting observation in the January, 1932, William and Mary Historical Quarterly:

"My uncle died just before the war ended. He resigned the presidency and professorship of the Medical College having enough without more care and wrote what he called popular lectures. He was a member of the Lyceum in the city of New York and with Mr. Gullatin and Gen. Wingfield Scott, besides other celebrities. On one occasion when he delivered one of these lectures Major Delafield, of the United States Army, was present—a special friend too of my uncle—after the lecture was over shook hands and remarked 'My conscience, Doctor, every sentence of that lecture is a text'."

A handsome portrait of Dr. Smith (the gift of his son and daughter of New York City) hangs in the College Library. He died February 9, 1865.

Dr. William Holland Wilmer, eleventh president of William and Mary College, was born in Kent county, Maryland, March 9, 1784, the fifth son of Simon and Anne Wilmer. He was educated at Washington College in Kent county and was ordained by Bishop Claggett in 1808. He was appointed to the charge of Chester Parish, Maryland, but in 1812 he removed to Alexandria, Virginia, where he had charge of St. Paul's Church. He took an active part with Meade and other young ministers in reviving the Episcopal Church in Virginia and was very active in the interest of Dr. Richard Channing Moore to the Episcopate. In 1815 he was elected to the charge of St. John's Church in Washington city but declined the appointment. In 1818 he was president of the Education Society of the District of Columbia of which he was one of the originators. In 1819 he commenced the publication of the Washington "Theological Repertory" and furnished many of the leading articles until his death. After his removal to Virginia he was delegated to every general convention while he lived and in 1821, 1823 and 1826 he was president of the house of clerical and lay deputies of that body. In 1820 he received the D. D. degree from Brown University. In 1833 he filled the chair of systematic theology, ecclesiastical history, and church polity at the Theological Seminary at Alexandria, Virginia. In the spring of 1826 he was chosen assistant rector to Bishop Moore in the Monumental Church at Richmond but declined the call. A few months later he was appointed president of William and Mary College and rector of Bruton Parish Church. His administration was brief as he died July 24, 1827.

Dr. Wilmer married three times—first Harriett Ringgold; secondly, Marion H. Cox, and thirdly, Anne B. Fitzhugh. He published quite a number of sermons. One of his sons, Richard H. Wilmer, was Bishop of Alabama, and another, Rev. George I. Wilmer, was for some time a distinguished professor at William and Mary College. Dr. Wilmer is buried under the chancel of Bruton Parish Church and a handsome tablet there commemorates his virtues as follows:

In Memory of the Rev'd William H. Wilmer, D. D.
whose eminent Talents and exemplary Piety enabled him to fill with dignity and usefulness
the important stations of
Rector of this Church
President of William and Mary College
President of the House of Clerical and Lay Deputies of the Protestant Episcopal Church
He was beloved in Private Life
Respected and Honored in Public Life
A Sound Divine
A Faithful Pastor
A Sincere and Practical Christian
Born at Chester Town, Maryland

Died July 24th, 1827

Rev. Adam Empie

Dr. Adam Empie, twelfth president of the College of William and Mary, was born in Schenectady, New York, September 5, 1785, son of John Empie of Dutch descent.

Dr. Empie was educated at Union College. He married Ann Eliza, daughter of Judge Joshua Wright, of Wilmington, North Carolina. He identified himself with the ministry of the Episcopal Church as assistant of St. George's Church, Hampstead, Long Island, in 1809-11. He was rector of St. James's Parish, Wilmington, North Carolina, from 1811-1814; chaplain and professor at West Point, New York, from 1814-1816 and again rector of St. James's Parish from 1816-1827. When Dr. Wilmer died in 1827, Dr. Empie was elected president and served until July 6, 1836.

His was a very successful administration. Through the sale of its former unproductive lands the endowment grew from $2,503.44 to $151,794.20. During the last year of Dr. Smith's incumbency there were only twelve students. When Dr. Empie resigned to accept the rectorship of St. James in Richmond, the number of students had grown to sixty-nine.

Dr. Empie spent his last days in Wilmington, North Carolina, where he died in 1860. His famous treatise on "tract areanism" is believed to be in the Theological Seminary at Alexandria, Virginia.

Dr. Thomas Roderick Dew

Thomas Roderick Dew (1802-46). An American educator, writer and publicist. He was born in King and Queen county, Virginia, December 5, 1802, and graduated in 1820 at William and Mary College, where he was professor of history, metaphysics, and political economy from 1827-1836 and served as president from 1836 until his death.

In 1829 he published his "lectures on the Restrictive System." It was brought out at a moment when feeling ran high on the subject of the tariff between protectionists and freetraders and though emanating from the closet of a thinker, removed from the agitation of political warfare, took a strong hold on the public mind and the subsequent adoption of the Compromise Tariff in 1833 may be attributed in part to its silent influence.

In 1832 he published a review of the celebrated debate in the Virginia legislature under the title—An Essay in Favor of Slavery which went far towards putting a stop to a movement, then assuming considerable proportions to proclaim emancipation in Virginia. His most important work is a Dygest of the Laws, Customs, Manners and Institutions of Ancient and Modern Nations.

His portrait hangs on the wall in the Blue Room of the Sir Christopher Wren Building of the College of William and Mary.

Robert Saunders

---

Robert Saunders, the fourteenth president of the College of William and Mary, was the first and only one of the college presidents to be born at "ye ancient capital"—Williamsburg, January 25, 1805. He was graduated at William and Mary in 1823 and entered the University of Virginia and took the course in law. He was made professor of mathematics in William and Mary College in 1833 and remained in that position until he was appointed president pro tem by the faculty.

On October 1, 1847, the appointment was confirmed by the Board of Visitors. He still retained the professorship of mathematics with the following distinguished educators in his faculty: Judge N. Beverley Tucker, professor of law; Dr. John Millington, professor of natural philosophy and chemistry; Charles Minnegerode, professor of humanity, and George Frederick Holmes, professor of history, political economy and national law. Professor Saunders was the son of Bishop Saunders whom Bishop Meade describes in his "Old Families and Churches" as "a lawyer of distinction and highly esteemed for his religious character." His father left with the other students to join the Continental army in the revolution and was with General Nathaniel Greene in his brilliant campaign in the South. There grew up between these two men the best of friendship. Robert Saunders, Jr., travelled in Europe with General Greene's daughter and was entertained by LaFayette.

Owing to the dissensions arising in the faculty at that time all the members of the faculty resigned including President Saunders. He then became head of the Eastern State Hospital (the oldest in the country) and served his city as a member of the legislature, mayor, magistrate, City councilman, and vestryman of Bruton Parish Church. During the War Between the States he was Captain of the Quartermaster's Department and made a very fine record here. He died September 11, 1868, leaving by his wife, Lucy Page, daughter of John Page, of Rosewell, eight children. His family donated the large and commodious reading room to the College Library which is being enjoyed by thousands of students and visitors. The following tablet has been unveiled in his honor:

Robert Saunders Reading Room
This reading room has been equipped by William Lawrence Saunders, Sc. D.

An officer of the Quartermaster's Department
Confederate States Army

An able soldier, a sterling citizen
an accomplished gentleman

This room, dedicated to the youth of Virginia, perpetuates a worthy name.

Benjamin Stoddert Ewell

---

Benjamin Stoddert Ewell (1810-94), soldier and educator, was born in Washington, D. C., June 10, 1810. He was grandson of Benjamin Stoddert, first secretary of the navy. He was graduated at the United States Military Academy in 1832 and assigned to the 4th artillery. He was assistant professor of mathematics at the Military Academy, 1832-35, and assistant professor of natural and experimental philosophy, 1835-36, when he resigned.

For the next three years he was one of the principal assistant engineers of the Baltimore and Susquehanna railroad. He was professor of mathematics at Hampden-Sidney from 1840-46 when he was elected to the Cincinnati professorship of mathematics and military science in Washington College, Lexington, Va., which office he held until 1848. At that time he was elected professor of mathematics and acting president of William and Mary College and became president in 1854. He held this office until 1861 when the college was suspended. The professors and students left to enter their country's service. He served in the Confederate Army as Colonel of the 32nd Virginia and was appointed adjutant general to General Joseph E. Johnston when he commanded the department of Tennessee and Mississippi. He was again elected president of William and Mary in 1865 and continued as president until 1887. The degree of LL. D. was conferred upon him from Hobart College in 1874. He was made an honorary member of the Royal Historical Society of Great Britain in 1880. Dr. Ewell urged the election of General Grant to the presidency because of his moderation and magnanimity at the close of the Civil War. He was opposed to secession in 1861 thinking it unnecessary and unconstitutional and resisted the measure until the war was waged. After the war he exerted himself to foster harmony between the north and the south and loyalty to the national government. He spoke in the House of Representatives at Washington April 1, 1874, and again on January 25, 1876, in support of the petition of William and Mary College for an appropriation on account of the destruction of its buildings and property during the War Between the States. From 1888 until his death he was president-emeritus of William and Mary College.

The memorial gates, at the north entrance to the College, are in memory of the famous "bell ringer."

Bishop John Johns

---

Bishop John Johns, fifteenth president of the College of William and Mary, was born in New Castle, Delaware, July 10, 1796, the second son of Kensey and Ann Van Dyke Johns. He entered Princeton in 1812 and graduated in 1816 in the same class with Bishop McIlwaine of Ohio, Governor McDowell, of Virginia, and Dr. John McLean, president of New Jersey College. He was a ministerial student and after graduation was called to All Saints Church, Frederick, Md. He remained here until 1829 when he became rector of Christ Church, Baltimore, Md.

Dr. Johns was elected assistant bishop of Virginia, May 21, 1842, and was still holding this position when elected to the presidency of William and Mary. Bishop Johns reorganized his faculty with himself as professor of moral and intellectual philosophy; Benjamin S. Ewell, professor of mathematics; Nathaniel B. Tucker, professor of law; William F. Hopkins, professor of natural philosophy and chemistry; Dr. Silas Totten, professor of moral and intellectual science; Henry A. Washington, professor of history and political economy, and J. Morgan Snead, professor of humanity.

Bishop Johns had a very successful term. He received his S. T. D. from Columbia College and the University of New York and his LL. D. from the College of William and Mary. He was descended from distinguished ancestors. His father was Chief Justice of the State of Delaware, his grandfather was Governor Nicholas Van Dyke who served many years in Congress and was governor of Delaware. He was married three times: first to Juliana Johnson, of Frederick, Md.; second to Jane Shaaf, of Georgetown, D. C., and third to Miss Southgate. Dr. Johns succeeded Bishop Meade to the office of bishop of the diocese. He died April 6, 1876, in his eightieth year.

1882-1888

During the six sessions between June, 1881, and September, 1888, the fortunes of the College were very low. In those years, President Ewell, sometimes with assistants and sometimes as the sole teacher, kept the College in partial operation. The only students were young men of Williamsburg and vicinity. No catalogues were published and if any records were kept, they have since disappeared. While the names of some students of this period could be published, it is not considered advisable to do so until more authentic information can be had.

WILLIAM AND MARY PHI BETA KAPPAS

On December 5, 1776, the famous Phi Beta Kappa, the first and most distinguished of all Greek-letter fraternities was founded by the students of the College at the celebrated Apollo room of the historic Raleigh Tavern.

The Alpha of Virginia, College of William and Mary, remained inactive from January 6, 1781 to June 25, 1851; and again from 1861 to December 9, 1893. Elisha Parmele, who is a charter member of the parent chapter, established Phi Beta Kappa Branches at Harvard, December 4, 1779, and five days later a charter was voted for Yale. The following are the charter members of the mother chapter of William and Mary:

John Heath, first president of Phi Beta Kappa Fraternity, member of Congress.
Thomas Smith, first secretary of Phi Beta Kappa Fraternity, member of State Convention, 1788.
Armistead Smith
Richard Booker
John Jones
John Stuart
Daniel Fitzhugh
Theoderick Fitzhugh
John Storke
Isaac Hite
William Short
John Morison
